Forced to leave everything behind by war, violence or famine. This is the reality of thousands of unaccompanied youngsters risking their lives on a perilous journey to Europe. These drastic changes often turn their world completely upside down. They need someone to take care of them in a safe environment.

Who are unaccompanied migrant children?

Young people under the age of 18 of foreign origin who are without their parents or other adults who represent or care for them. Most of them are boys aged 13 or older.

"After attending an information session on foster families, our family decided to get involved. Sometimes, there are challenges but we truly are very happy and blessed with our foster son."

- Youssef Himi, foster father
